START A CAREER - NEW HAMPSHIRE

How to become a tow truck driver in New Hampshire

What tow truck drivers do, the skills and credentials that matter in New Hampshire, and how to find tow truck driver jobs.

Sources verified 2026-11-21 - Updated 2026-11-21

1 What tow truck drivers do

Tow truck drivers move disabled, damaged and illegally parked vehicles, help at accident scenes and often handle roadside calls, at night, on weekends and in bad weather.

2 Skills and training

You need a valid driver license and a driving record your employer's insurer accepts. Heavy tow trucks need a commercial driver license; most employers train new drivers on equipment and scene safety.

3 Licensing

We found no New Hampshire tow truck driver license. If your employer tows for the State Police, it files your driver information and record history, and you wear reflective clothing whenever you work near the roadway.

4 Find jobs on NCC

Browse open jobs below or on NCC Jobs.

Requirements at a glance

Tow list employee records and reflective clothing

Required in some cases - State - New Hampshire State Police

If your employer is on the State Police rotation list, it files your driver information and record history with the State Police, and you wear reflective clothing whenever you work in or next to the roadway.

Official agencies and links

RSA 106-B:30, Requirements for Placement on the Tow List

New Hampshire General Court

https://gc.nh.gov/rsa/html/VII/106-B/106-B-30.htm

Frequently asked questions

Do tow truck drivers need a license in New Hampshire?

We found no individual license; State Police tow list companies file their drivers' records.

This guide is general information, not legal advice. Rules change and can depend on your city or county, so confirm with the official agencies linked below before you apply.